SECTION B

[75 Marks]

ANSWER ANY THREE QUESTIONS IN THIS SECTION

1. Compare and contrast Amu Djoloto's The Good Old Motto and David Diop's The Renegade respectively on the basis of graphological deviation. Below are the poems: [25 marks]

The Good Old Motto

"Ut omnes unum sint"
The point is obtuse, I think,
That all men may be one!
The black and white key won
Into harmony to settle

A matter man has scuttled.
The division is not there,
If you look everywhere,
No man is black or white;
I may be black but not quite:
My teeth are perhaps white, my skin somewhat dark'
Your skin somewhat what, your hair perhaps dark.

The trouble is in the mind,
It is not a matter of kind.
Creature comfort and security breed fear,
They cause the philosophy some hold dear.
Let everybody have them and man is naked;
The thinking and the psychology, too, will be naked.
And when everybody is naked, we shall all join
In a global dance forgetting the old facile motto.

The Renegade

My brother you flash your teeth in response to every hypocrisy
My brother with gold-rimmed glasses
You give your master a blue-eyed look
My poor brother in immaculate evening dress
Screaming and whispering and pleading in the parlors of condescension
We pity you
Your country's burning sun is nothing but a shadow
On your serene 'civilized' brow
And the thought of your grandmother's hut
Brings 'blushes on your face that is beached
By years of humiliation and bad conscience
And well you trample on the bitter red soil of Africa
Let these words of anguish keep time with your restless step

3. Read the TEXT below carefully and answer the questions that follow. [25marks]

The passage deals with the description of the major character of the novel and American society after World War I.

He did extraordinarily well in the war. He was a captain before he went to the front, and following the Argonne bat ties he got his majority and the command of the divisional machine-guns. After the Armistice he tried frantically to get home, but some complication or misunderstanding sent him to Oxford instead. He was worried now -there was a quality of nervous despair in Daisy's letters. She didn't see why he couldn't come. She was feeling the pressure of the world outside, and she wanted to see him and feel his presence beside her and be reassured that she was doing the right thing after all. For Daisy was young and her artificial world vas redolent of orchids and pleasant, cheerful snobbery and orchestras which set the rhythm of the year, summing up the sadness and suggestiveness of life in new tunes. All night the saxophones wailed the hopeless comment of the "Beale Street Blues" while a hundred pairs of golden and silver slippers shuffled the shining dust. At the gray tea hour there were always rooms that throbbed incessantly with this low, sweet fever, while fresh faces drifted here and there like rose petals blown by the sad horns around the floor. Through this twilight universe Daisy began to move again with the season; suddenly she was again keeping half a dozen dates a day with half a dozen men, and drowsing asleep at dawn with the beads and chiffon of an evening dress tangled among dying orchids on the floor beside her bed. And all the time something within her was crying for a decision. She wanted her life shaped now, immediately- and the decision must be made by some force - of love, of money, of unquestionable practicality - that was close at hand. That force took shape in the middle of spring with the arrival of Tom Buchanan. There was a wholesome bulkiness about his person and his position, and Daisy was flattered. Doubtless there was a certain struggle and a certain relief. The letter reached Gatsby while he was still at Oxford.

i. Analyse the syntactical and phonetic peculiarities in the sentence below "She was feeling the pressure of the world outside, and she wanted to see him and feel his presence beside her and be reassured that she was doing the right thing after all."

ii. Discuss the stylistic devices that are used in the first paragraph to show the mood of the characters after World War I.

iii. Discuss the stylistic devices that are used to describe Daisy's "artificial world".

5. Copiously undertake a stylistic analysis of the first two stanzas of the poem "Adonais: An Elegy On The Death of John Keats" by the English poet, Percy Bysshe Shelley.

[25 marks]

I

I weep for Adonais—he is dead!
Oh, weep for Adonais! though our tears
Thaw not the frost which binds so dear a head!
And thou, sad Hour, selected from all years
To mourn our loss, rouse thy obscure compeers,
And teach them thine own sorrow, say: "With me
Died Adonais; till the Future dares
Forget the Past, his fate and fame shall be
An echo and a light unto eternity!"

II

Where wert thou, mighty Mother, when he lay,
When thy Son lay, pierc'd by the shaft which flies
In darkness? where was lorn Urania
When Adonais died? With veiled eyes,
'Mid listening Echoes, in her Paradise
She sate, while one, with soft enamour'd breath,
Rekindled all the fading melodies,
With which, like flowers that mock the corse beneath,
He had adorn'd and hid the coming bulk of Death.
